

It may be Black History Month, but SF students engage in Ethnic Studies classes year-round

It may be Black History Month, but SF students engage in Ethnic Studies classes year-round

Myong Leigh, San Francisco Examiner

February 7, 2017

Interim Superintendent Myong Leigh explains SFUSD's approach to developing students' knowledge of diverse histories throughout the full school year. Leigh cites Stanford's study to describe the influential role Ethnic Studies has had on student outcomes.

Article

READ ARTICLE HERE

Related Materials

- NEWS: Can separate be equal? SF Chronicle
- Text messaging program helps boost language skills in preschoolers, study finds
- NEWS: The Power of a Good Idea: How San Francisco is Building a PreK-3rd Grade Bridge
- NEWS: How do you start, maintain, and sustain a research-practice partnership?
- New Stanford Program Texts Parents to Help Teach Their Kindergartners to Read
- NEWS: Memorizers are the lowest achievers and other Common Core math surprises
- NEWS: Teachers are about to get the data they need to educate your kids, experts say
- PRESS: Early-Education Research: Transitional-Kindergarten Evaluation in San Francisco
- NEWS - At-risk students improve when they take a race and ethnicity class- study
- NEWS - Ethnic studies classes in S.F. surprisingly successful